4.	 Dr. Salisa Westrick	Department Head, Health Outcomes Research and Policy, College of Pharmacy	Dr. Salisa Westrick is a pharmacist from Thailand and a health services researcher. Her research program seeks to improve the quality of health care and patient health outcomes through promoting the uptake of evidence-based innovations into practice. As an implementation scientist, she has studied the adoption, implementation, and evaluation of various types of healthcare innovations such as immunization services and therapy management services. https://pharmacy.auburn.edu/directory/salisa-westrick.php
5.	 Associate Professor Dr. Surachat Ngorsuraches	Health Outcomes Research and Policy, College of Pharmacy	Dr. Surachat Ngorsuraches is a health economist. He has applied a discrete choice experiment (DCE) to examine health preference as a part of patient-centered value assessment for over a decade. He has direct experience engaging patients and caregivers in patient-centered outcomes research. https://pharmacy.auburn.edu/directory/surachat-ngorsuraches.php
6.	 Associate Professor Dr. Jingjing Qian	Health Outcomes Research and Policy, College of Pharmacy	Dr. Qian's research focuses on health outcomes and pharmacoepidemiology. The goal of her research is to create evidence in effective strategies and interventions for improving population health and eliminating health disparities. https://pharmacy.auburn.edu/directory/jingjing-qian.php

7.	 Assistant Clinical Professor Dr. Ashley Hawthorne	Pharmacy Practice, College of Pharmacy	Dr. Hawthorne's research area primarily occurs in the critically ill trauma population, with a focus on antimicrobial stewardship. My investigations are composed of optimizing antimicrobial therapy, individualizing treatment regimens, and avoiding unnecessary antibiotic exposure in order to enhance patient outcomes, prevent the emergence of drug-resistant pathogens, and reduce the overall burden of healthcare-associated infections. https://pharmacy.auburn.edu/directory/ashley-hawthorne.php
8.	 Assistant Professor Dr. Shabarinath Srikumar	Poultry Science, College of Agriculture	Dr. Srikumar's research focuses on (1) Determining the stress factors foodborne pathogenic bacteria encounter in the food matrices, (2) Determining the bacterial genetic factors that aid the survival of foodborne pathogens in the food matrices, and (3) Investigating the role of food environments in generating and disseminating drug resistance in foodborne bacterial pathogens. https://agriculture.auburn.edu/about/directory/faculty/shabarinath-srikumar/
9.	 Assistant Professor Dr. Brandon Smith	Animal Sciences, College of Agriculture	Dr. Smith's research focuses on ruminal digestive efficiency in beef cattle and forage systems. This includes a primary interest in forage cell wall carbohydrate composition, but also on energy loss through greenhouse gas production (e.g., methane), the kinetics of digestion and passage (as it relates to intake), and the role of supplemental feedstuffs in modulating rumen dynamics. This effort is in support of sustainable grazing strategies for management of beef cattle production systems. https://agriculture.auburn.edu/about/directory/faculty/brandon-smith/

10.	 Assistant Professor Dr. Sayyed Fawad Ali Shah	Communication and Journalism, College of Liberal Arts	Dr. Shah's research centers on examining cutting edge developments in journalistic practices across cultures and nations. He explores contemporary threats to journalism as an institution, the social implication of emerging technologies, and journalists' mental health. He is currently leading a project that examines the evolving relationship between journalists and audience in the digital environment, focusing on the impact of online harassment on the mental health of journalists globally. https://cla.auburn.edu/directory/sayyed-fawad-ali-shah/
11.	 Assistant Professor Dr. Binita Mahato	Political Science, College of Liberal Arts	Dr. Mahato has a background in architecture, urban design, and city and regional planning. Her research explores the relationship between space and society. Her work has focused on diversity, equity, and inclusion, particularly in terms of access to amenities and recreation, such as urban parks. I have worked in various cities in North America as well as international cities such as The Hague in the Netherlands, Birmingham in England, and Kolkata in India. She is also interested in investigating urban informality in cities in the Global South. https://cla.auburn.edu/directory/binita-mahato
12.	 Assistant Professor Dr. Danielle Pester Boyd	Special Education, Rehabilitation and Counseling, College of Education	Dr. Pester's research is focused on developing innovative and community-based strategies to meet the health and mental health needs of historically underserved populations and to contribute to the evidence for community-based approaches to research and outcomes that address the social determinants of health. As a scholar, Dr. Pester seeks to form cross-disciplinary partnerships (counseling, education, psychology, kinesiology, medicine, nursing, public health, criminal, etc.) to develop integrated care models that can address the complexities that arise from the impact of the social determinants of health. https://education.auburn.edu/directory/profile.php?profid=pester-danielle
