To promote and develop itself, UniLicungo has define three major areas of academic activity in which the university seeks to achieve excellence: i) Agriculture ii) Education, health and well-being and iii) Conservation of Environment and Biodiversity.

With regard to the organic structure, Licungo University has six Faculties, namely: Faculty of Education, Faculty of Economics and Management, Faculty of Agrarian Sciences, Faculty of Letters and Humanities, Faculty of Medicine and Faculty of Sciences and Technologies. In addition to the Faculties, UniLicungo has four research centers in the areas of education, humanities, agriculture, community development and environment and technological development.

In response to the challenges imposed by its geographical location, UniLicungo is highly focused on the medical education, agriculture and engineering and mathematics. 1. Technical support in setting up laboratories;
2. Curricular development on Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM) education;
3. Training programs for teachers in matters of tropical medicine and parasitology, microbiology and bacteriology and other relevant areas on human medicine;
4. Other areas that might be discussed further.

We take this opportunity to invite you to visit our University in Quelimane but also to extend the invitation to visit other facilities located in Sofala province.

Hopping that our request will receive the due attention of Your Excellence, we address vows of esteem and consideration.
